Goods and means of transport require declaration at the time of their movement across a customs border (according to newly established customs regimes).

For the purpose of customs regulation in relation to goods, the following types of customs regimes are established:

Clearance for Internal Consumption- customs regime under which goods imported into the customs territory of the Russian Federation remain in this territory with no obligation to export them from this territory.

Export- customs regime under which, goods which are in free circulation in the customs territory of the Russian Federation, are exported from this territory with no obligation of reverse import.

By clicking a spot marked on the map you'll see which measures and documents are required of a customer of Customs, on the one hand, and of Customs, on the other, at each stage of the transport. The examples also include links to the customs glossary giving the meanings of customs terms.
